It is located by the east of Towada. As of 2003, the town had an estimated population of 11,880 and a population density of 126.11 persons per km². The total area was 108.15 km². The Libyan army said Friday it was withdrawing from the oil town of Gharyan, leaving only an Islamic militia in the area. The statement gave no reason for the move, which began Saturday and was unannounced, except to say the withdrawal is "necessary due to security concerns." On Wednesday, on the third day of a military assault on the oil town, armed men associated with the Islamic State group seized control of Gharyan in a raid that shocked the oil industry and which prompted world powers to suspend Libya's UN-led peace process. The Islamic State group has repeatedly seized oil fields in the past year but analysts say the theft of Gharyan's prized crude deposits was its largest seizure. A military spokesman said on Friday that the army had only withdrawn from the immediate vicinity and that it has no intention to leave Gharyan or Benghazi entirely. An Islamic militia, the Knights of Islam, seized the town after the army pulled back. Gharyan lies about 110 kilometers (70 miles) northwest of the capital, Tripoli, and has a population of about 250,000.
